"Yes." he said. "it seems reckless un til vou know how safe it is." "How can it be safe?" she cried in amazement. "Simplest thing you ever heard of," he answered. "Each of those men up there has a powerful magnet fitted into the soles of his shoes. The magnets cling like death to the iron crossbeams. They cling so tightly that a man couldn't fall off if he wanted to. Some times the magnets pull so hard that little men who haven't much leg muscle find it difficult to lift their feet to walk

"The other morning I was strolling by in the street below the building when a pocketknife suddenly clattered on the pavement in front of me. A sil ver quarter and a couple of dimes and a key quickly followed it.

"Then I heard laughter up above and hastily looked up. One of the workmen had slipped from a long crossbeam and was hanging up there at the sixteenth story, feet up and head downward, supported by the magnets in his soles. It was his pockets that gave forth the silver shower. Oh, no, bless you, there is really no danger about it

Detroit Journal. AFRICAN WOLVES.

They Are Very Ferecious, and Ever the Lions Fear Them.

The African wolves, when hunting in packs, are very formidable, and M. oa, the great French explorer, says:

Experience has shown me that they attack not only all animals of medium size, but also the lion itself. They wage terrible battles, in which the lion succumbs to numbers, though not without having ripped open some of the enemy. But the survivors in their turn soon tear it. Consequently the large, ravenous beast has a salutary terror of them. In this connection he relates a story of how his servant once scared away some lions who had surrounded them in the darkness away from camp. The night was as black as pitch, and we did not distinguish the trees until upon them. Lions prowled around us. and one of them roared within alarming proximity; but we could not see them; we heard them walking in the leaves on all sides. Reaching the tree, we found one of our companions with the rifle cocked, another trying to re-
